

Poetry.

For the Banner.
Time.

By W. J. B.
Forward, onward, onward, onward still,
Untiring, always, the marcher's will;
Nations may rise, may flourish and decay
Yet time increasing wings his wondrous way,
The lightning's wrath may scatter the mountains peak.

The earthquake's shock its craggy basement break,
The tempests change the mountains height.

Depthes unknown to science and to light,
Yet still unchanged, for age unchanged to be Shall roll the wheels of time—Eternity
Give fancy reign and speed her fearless flight
How short her limit, and how fair her flight
How small the spot how seem an human life
Concord with her that she never leaves
That broad expanse where fancy never can fly
Where scenes hants and genies' self would die!

O man! inspiring insect of a day!
How short thy triumph and how weak thy sway!

How vain thy efforts over to oppose
Some fair art of over-sophis and rage
Some full memorial of thy fame to rear
Thy soon shall vanish as thy transient bear!

Where now the wreath that crowned the hero's bust?

Where now the millions prostrate in the dust?

Where Mansoulum Cenotaph, and tomb?

Where's Caesar's prowess, Cleopatra's bloom?

Where's the pride that Ethiopia owned?

When Egypt saw her warlike kings overthrow'd?

The wise the valiant, and the great

Ere ended met—a worse than Roman fate

The founders of her laws religion and her fame

Egypt was as yet without a name?

The world's a better place to man to man!

That every age and every race can find

Tis thine alone, those secrets to unfold

Oblivion shadows from the world untold

Tis thine to teach that genus fade away

Like clouds that vanish in the ethereal day

That glory's seen is but the light that is given

To deck the mortals in the hues of heaven.

BEST SELLER ON THIS SOCIETY TO those who have the best taste in the production of Wine, Brandy, and Spirits, has produced the most wonderful cognac that has ever been made.

I have been attested for forty years on my knowledge, in 1814, that I had been a manufacturer in 1814, and had one hundred jugs above the base, in my shop, which I had a hundred different kinds of wine, and brandy, and cognac, and a hundred different kinds of liqueurs, which I had in my shop, and at the shop, not in my house, but in large rooms on my master in my office.

The mystery that I have enshrouded for the last two years, I can't describe to you. I was in such agony that I never rested at night,
and I could not sleep for fear of being discovered.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
was afraid to let any one know what
I was doing.

My eyes were filled with tears, and I
